

Integrity and Leadership at the Internship

Objective: At the end of the activity the students will have connected examples of integrity and leadership styles at their internship.

Directions: Using the prompts below and provide your responses in the white spaces.

Describe the importance of your role of having integrity at your internship.	I signed a non-disclosure agreement. I was only given access to certain resources, but I was still trusted with those materials and trusted to make use of them correctly.
Describe how others at your internship display integrity.	The company has strict non-disclosure agreements. They also have guidelines regarding client data privacy and are dedicated to integrity.
Describe your role in leadership at your internship.	Though my role didn't include managing a team, I took a leadership role in my independent projects by proactively identifying problems, designing solutions, and maintaining self-discipline to meet deadlines.
Describe how others display leadership at your internship.	I watched the CEO present to the other employees and lead them. I watched my boss, the CTO, confer with the other employees in his office. I watched another employee help another new employee get back on track with their work and help them through it.
Make a list of current effective manager practices that your host supervisor exhibits.	He is always very clear with his communication and delegates tasks to all the people he manages. He is also a strong programmer and has a deep understanding of both computer science and the manufacturing business. Therefore, it is easy for him to communicate with his colleagues.
Make a list of your current practices that would make you an effective manager.	I believe I am a decent communicator, which will definitely help with managing others. I am strongly dedicated to ethics and believe I can understand others well. I can work both independently and with others.

--	--